

References

- 1 Copeland PM: The incidentally discovered adrenal mass. Ann Intern Med 1983;98:940–945.
- 2 Glazer HS, Weyman PJ, Sagel SS, et al: Non-functioning adrenal masses: incidental discovery on computed tomography. AJR Am J Roentgenol 1982;139:81–85.
- 3 Chang A, Hraw SJ: Oncocytes, oncocytosis and oncocytic tumors. Athol Annu 1992;27: 263–304.
- 4 Boland GW, Goldberg MA, Lee MJ, et al: Indeterminate adrenal mass in patients with cancer: evaluation at PET with 2-[¹⁸F]-fluoro-2-deoxy-D-glucose. Radiology 1995;194: 131–134.
- 5 Troy RB, Klein EA: Encountering the rare adrenocortical carcinoma. Contemp Urol 1990;2:15–20.
- 6 Mitnick JS, Bosniak MA, Megibow AJ, Nardich DP: Non-functioning adrenal adenomas discovered incidentally on computed tomography. Radiology 1983;148:495–499.
- 7 Mitchell DG, Crovello M, Matteucci T, et al: Benign adrenocortical masses: diagnosis with chemical shift MR imaging. Radiology 1992;18:345–351.
- 8 Schwartz L, Panicek D, Kutcher J, et al: Adrenal masses in patients with malignancy: prospective comparison of echo-planar, fast spin-echo and chemical shift MR imaging. Radiology 1995;197:421–425.
- 9 Yun M, Kim W, Alnafisi N, et al: ¹⁸F-FDG PET in characterizing adrenal lesions detected on CT or MRI. J Nucl Med 2001;42:1795–1799.
- 10 Minn H, Salonen A, Friberg J, et al: Imaging of adrenal incidentalomas with PET using ¹¹C-metomidate and ¹⁸F-FDG. J Nucl Med 2004;45:972–979.

Erratum

Please note: The name of the sixth author of the paper ‘Lichen Sclerosus of the Male Genitalia and Urethral Stricture Diseases’ (Urol Int 2004;73:1–5) was misspelled. It should read Elisabetta Costantini.